GENERAL CORRESPONDENCE: Box 774, 78767

The Society was organized in 1960 as a non-profit organization chartered by the State of Texas. Its purposes are to collect & preserve genealogical & historical information about Texas, particularly that pertaining to the City of Austin and to Travis and surrounding counties; to instruct & assist members in genealogical research; & to publish public & private records of genealogical interest. Gifts & bequests to AGS are tax-deductible.

Membership is open to all upon payment of annual dues of $6.00. Family memberships are $9 for two in same household; no special rate to libraries. DUES FOR THE CALENDAR YEAR ARE PAYABLE JANUARY FIRST.

Meetings are held in the Howson Branch Public Library, 2500 Exposition Boulevard, at 7:30 p.m. on the 4th Tuesday of each month except December. Visitors are welcome.

AGS Quarterly is published in March, June, September & December, and is sent free to members. To save time & postage, send all dues to treasurer and material for the quarterly to the editor (addresses above). Contributions are used at the discretion of the editor; neither she nor the Society can be held responsible for the accuracy of such material. Material submitted may be edited to conform to the format of our quarterly.
EDITOR'S PAGE

Austin Genealogical Society has suffered two severe blows lately. We mourn the loss of one of our most valuable members, Mr. Seth Darnaby Breeding who died at the age of 76 on 17 Jan 1977. Our deepest sympathy goes to his widow (née Evelyn Glasscock), son Seth Junior, and other relatives.

Mr. Breeding was a past vice president of AGS and had served many terms on the Board of Directors. For several years he was custodian of left-over quarterlies, filling orders promptly and at his own expense. He was recognized for his loyal support of the Society in every way, and for his generosity in sharing his genealogical "know-how". Mr. Breeding was highly esteemed for his wisdom, wit, and cheerful disposition.

When the subject of a bicentennial gift came up, Lucie Price voiced the sentiments of all who knew Seth Breeding by suggesting that the Society make the gift in his honor; the vote was unanimous. (Incidentally, the set of books ordered proved to be defective and not suited to genealogical research, in the opinion of a committee, so they were returned. A search for a substitute is under way.)

AGS suffered another blow when Mrs. Virgil Lee Snell moved to Amarillo. Her husband was the victim of a heart attack shortly before Christmas, and we offer our condolences to Mary Kay. With two children, Ben and Beth, to provide for, Mary Kay felt that she could not pass up the offer of a better (paying, at least!) position with Amarillo Public Library. We hope they will appreciate her as much as we did.

Besides being of immeasurable help to all of us while she was at Texas State Library, Mary Kay has served the Society as secretary, president, and director for some eight years. She has taken charge of exchange quarterlies, answered letters of inquiry, and helped produce indexes of the first eleven volumes of AGS Quarterly, as well as a clever "handbook." Mrs. Snell has actively supported our workshops by giving or composing valuable talks, and in other ways.

We will miss Mary Kay sorely; we extend our thanks for all she has done and wish her every success in her new position.

The Society also extends its sympathy to Mrs. Pauline B. Cooney on the tragic death of her grandson.

1977 dues are now OVERDUE. This issue of the quarterly is sent as a courtesy to last year's members, but if your dues are not received by the treasurer* by 1 May, June quarterly will not be sent to you--sorry!

And the June number is a special one, for each member may submit two camera-ready pages to be printed FREE. The deadline for receipt by the editor* is 15 MAY. These pages may be lineage charts in any form, family group sheets, or family history in narrative form IF THEY ARE LEGIBLE. Dark typewritten copy is preferable; your name & address must be on each 8½x11" page. Leave wide margins (both sides) for punching and binding.

The June issue also carries a roster of AGS members. If the treasurer* does not have your current address & phone number, please notify him by 10 May so he can make a revised list and get it to the editor by 20 May (last page, so I can wait a little longer for it).

*See inside front cover for addresses, and always send mail to the proper person to save delay and cost of forwarding.
1890 SPECIAL CENSUS SCHEDULES -- TEXAS

Union Veterans in Travis County in 1890

Although we tend to think of Travis County residents as ardent wavers of the Bonnie Blue Flag, soon after the Civil War ended a sizeable number of them proudly claimed their prerogatives as supporters of the Union. In AGS Quarterly, Vol. XIII Nos. 1 and 2, was printed a list of white voters in Travis County as of 1867-68 (copied by Mrs. Clarence W. Balch). Those 706 men obviously had not aided the Confederacy in any way (or they would not have been allowed to vote) and were either local Unionists or among those who had swarmed into Texas after Appomattox, seeking political and financial opportunities. Many became leaders of the community and founded prominent families.

The same section of the 1867 register listed 884 "Colored" who were entitled to vote. The names of these newly enfranchised slaves may be seen at the Texas State Archives on a list prepared by the Office of Civilian Affairs, Headquarters Fifth Military District, in 1870.

A considerable number of the men on the 1890 Special Census were in Austin 1871-72, as can be seen in the abstract of the Austin City Directory printed in AGS Quarterly, Vol. XIV No. 4, pp. 71-110.

To show how the Union population of the county had grown by 1890, Mrs. P. B. Price and Mrs. H. R. Gentry copied the Travis County section of the 1890 Special Census Schedules for Texas from Roll #101, Bundles 173 and 174, on microfilm at Texas State Library. These schedules are a part of a body of records in the National Archives designated as Record Group #15, Records of the Veterans Administration.

We are grateful to these ladies for performing this tedious task and giving us such an interesting and valuable record to study. Learning the regiment a man served in enables a researcher to write for his military service record and pension application—see Guide to Genealogical Records in the National Archives by Colket and Bridgers, 1964 edition pp. 55-58, 77-78, 84-85.

Reason for the Special Census: An act of 1 Mch 1889 provided that, along with the Eleventh Census of the United States, a special form should be filled out to show veterans (or their widows) of the "Army, Navy, or Marine Corps of the U.S. in the war of the rebellion." The original plan was to have the data printed, but no funds were provided for that purpose, so the records were kept in various places until 1930 when they were turned over to the Veterans Administration. In 1943 the originals were transferred to the National Archives, but some of them (from Alabama halfway through Kentucky, alphabetically) have been misplaced or destroyed (note on microfilm).

Fate of the 1890 Regular Schedules: On the evening of 10 Jan 1921, fire broke out in the basement of the Commerce Department Building in Washington DC. (For details, see page 23.) A General Services Administration form entitled "Census Data, 1790-1890" has a footnote stating that more than 99% of the 1890 census was destroyed by fire; but information from the "remaining fragments is available on request" (GSA Form #7029).

No doubt the bulk of the residue was so charred and water soaked as to be illegible, so it was destroyed in 1933 by authority of an act of Congress to "provide for the disposition of useless papers in the Executive Departments," approved 16 Feb 1889.
Procedure for Compiling Special Census: The work of the enumerators was begun on the first Monday in June 1890 and was completed by the first of July. Since one purpose of the tabulation was to determine who were eligible for pensions (and to prevent fraud?), great pains were taken to assure accuracy and thoroughness. From the existing pension records 458,677 names were taken in advance. Thousands of letters were written to veterans asking for information not obtained by the enumerators, and inquiries were printed in 500 newspapers. Membership rosters of the Grand Army of the Republic (patriotic society of Union veterans) were consulted and compared with the census data.

All of this research accounts for the notation "Add" written in a different hand before the last few names on some pages of the special form. It was discovered that many men had served under an assumed name and then resumed their real names after the war. In those cases, the "Alias" was written below the correct name.

But despite diligent efforts, there were some omissions and other errors. One resident of Burnet County was inadvertently included in the Travis County tabulation, and one or two names were later marked out and designated "Confederate" in the margin.

In Morrison & Fourmy's General Directory of the City of Austin, 1889-1890 (page 50) is found a listing of the officers of the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Texas, Headquarters, Austin. Men denoted as "of Austin" included J.C. DeGress, J.M. Odell, T.M. Helen, C.B. Stoddard, and J.J. Anderson. Officers of the local post, Joseph A. Mover Post #10, were J.P. Richardson, R.B. Underhill, J.J. Anderson, J.M. Odell, J.J. Gasser, D. Friedman, J.N. Gilbert, R.H. Hanna, Wm. Smith, G.B. Jones, and V.C. Thomas. One would expect to find all of these men in the Travis County Special Census, but, as will be seen below, some do not appear. Probably they lived in adjoining counties.

Locating a Veteran on the Film: If you wish to examine a certain entry on the film (Roll #101 "1890 Special Census Schedules--Texas" at Texas State Library), run through the second alphabetical sequence of counties to Travis. The sheets are not numbered consecutively; each of the 21 enumerators numbered his 1, 2, etc. But as there are only 10 or 12 entries on a sheet, and only two to four sheets per enumerator, it is not hard to find a given man when you find the enumerator's name at the top of the page. (I alphabetized the men for your convenience.)

The enumerators appear in this order (reading down):

Alfred H. Schutze         Julia E. Turner         E. L. Whitehead
J. W. Howard              A. C. Jessen           Frederic E. Cushman
L. E. Rector              Ed A. Junck           A. S. /?/ Anderson
J. R. Allen               J. D. Rundell         Henry W. Walker
Thomas L. Purnell         Jas. M. Hornsby       B. J. Scheier
Albert Schutze            Jacob M. Harrell       Julia Turner (2nd time)
Richard Lamont            Joseph W. Gillson      W. H. Lacy
Wm. A. Harrell

The enumerator's surname only will be shown in parentheses following the veteran's name in our table--except Harrell and Schutze.

Column Headings. In the upper left of each form can be seen the Supervisor's District number and the Enumeration District number, but these have been omitted as non-essential. The first column head on the film is "From Schedule I" over "House No." and "Family No." Since these refer to entries on the regular 1890 Census which no longer exists, there was no point in including those numbers in this article. I have also omitted the column entitled "Length of Service" over "Yrs. Mos. Days" to save space, for the dates of enlistment and discharge seem more valuable--readers can figure out the time span.

The columns included herein read on the film: NAMES OF SURVIVING SOLDIERS, SAILORS, & MARINES, & WIDOWS -- RANK -- COMPANY -- NAME OF REGIMENT OR VESSEL -- DATE OF ENLISTMENT -- DATE OF DISCHARGE -- POST OFFICE ADDRESS -- DISABILITY INCURRED -- REMARKS.

The last two columns appear on the following pages in separate sets of quotation marks, unless the enumerator wrote across the two columns together.

Seldom were all the columns filled in completely, and frequently are the entries hard to decipher. Each of the enumerators had his own quirks of penmanship and abbreviation; many betrayed their mispronunciation of Cavalry by abbreviating it Cal instead of Cav or Cavy. Handwriting being what it is, three letters often seen in the Regiment column might be interpreted Col for Colorado or Colored as well as Cal for California or Calvary!

Arrangement of Data on the following pages is in this order:
1. Name, 2. Enumerator in parentheses, 3. Rank, 4. Company, 5. Regiment or Vessel, 6. Date of Enlistment - Date of Discharge (or Length of Service if nothing else is given); 7. Address of Veteran or Widow; 8. "Disability Incurred"; 9. "Remarks."

To complement the meager data on this special census I have consulted three sources: Morrison & Fourmy's General Directory of the City of Austin 1889-1890 (published in 1889 at Galveston; can be found in Texas State Archives); The Handbook of Texas (should be in every library in Texas); and Travis County, Texas Marriage Records 1840-1882 (privately published in 1973 by Lucie Clift Price; in Texas State Library and most other big ones). Anything I found in these books follows the Special Census data in our table.

There is, of course, no guarantee that these bits and pieces apply to the veterans on the census--there could be any number of John Browns in Austin by 1890. These additions are offered only as clues or tips for the interested researcher to follow up. Many men on the census are not shown in the Austin directory, probably because they lived outside the city limits and had no place of business in town.

In examining post-bellum records a researcher may encounter an invisible obstacle to accuracy in that some recorders zealously inserted (c) after the names of freedmen and others just as conscientiously omitted any such designation. Since a freedman and his children usually took the surname of their former master, it is hard to tell them apart in marriage records, etc. If I have confused the marriage of a John Brown who was black with that of a John Brown who was white, I apologize for leading you down a false trail. A thorough search of corroborating records (deed, probate, church, burial, newspaper, etc.) should reveal the true facts. The 1880 Census will be helpful in most cases.

"It Might Have Been" Department: The tragic loss of the 1890 regular schedules deprived us of such interesting data as the number of persons and of families in the house; relationships; mother of how many children; Civil War service; status of naturalization; home owned or rented; if mortgaged, post office address of owner . . . . .

"SASE, PLEASE!"

Do YOU Have the SASE Habit?

People who are just starting out in the genealogical practice of letter writing may not appreciate the importance of the request, "SASE, please!" A Self-Addressed Stamped Envelope should be enclosed in every genealogical letter you write, especially if you are asking for more than you are giving.

Sad to say, some old hands are lax about this, also. Just stop and think how the postage alone mounts up for a big-hearted person who answers every request for assistance. And that's not counting the time spent looking up and copying down the desired data.

Austin Genealogical Society (like others) receives so many requests for genealogical help that we have had to institute the policy of requiring at least reimbursement for postage, for we are on a limited budget.

SO -- all you people who have been writing for free research -- no SASE, no reply!

EARLY BIRD ANNOUNCEMENT OF WORKSHOP

The chairman of the 1977 Austin Genealogical Society Workshop, Mrs. Murray C. Moffatt (Loudie) announces that plans are well in hand for this popular event.

Town Hall at Hancock Center has been reserved for Saturday 27 August, and arrangements are being made for an outstanding speaker.

So mark your calendars and plan to do your share in making this the best workshop we have ever had!

Thomas Hinds Duggan, Descendant and Ancestor was written by the subject's great-granddaughter, a sincerely respected founder of Austin Genealogical Society. The Society is pleased and proud that one of its members has compressed many years of study and research into such an excellent book.

This work is defined as a family history rather than a genealogy, being the chronicle of Thomas Hinds Duggan as both a descendant and an ancestor. Of the five W's of journalism, Mrs. Gracy has concentrated on the Why and the Who, with secondary emphasis on the attendant When, Where, and What.

Never has this reviewer seen as masterful an exposition of the effects of current events on a family. The author sets forth a concise history of America, as a colony and as a nation, and the influences of each era on the migrations and occupations of her ancestors.

Where specific facts pertaining to the Duggans and allied families are scanty, Mrs. Gracy traces the general pattern of pioneers of the "second class," as Frederick Jackson Turner designated those who "purchase the lands, add field to field, clear out the roads, throw rough bridges over the streams, put up hewn log houses with glass windows and brick or stone chimneys, . . . school-houses, court-houses, etc."

Later members of the Duggan family and collateral families were highly educated, held important public offices, promptly volunteered for military service when their homeland was threatened, and sacrificed their property to the Confederate Cause.

In the Foreword Mrs. Gracy states: "I hope to tell the factual story of our Duggan family, as reflected by records . . . trying always to keep each generation in focus amidst the events of its time." She has succeeded admirably.

For the later generations, no attempt was made to expose the genealogical skeletons (date and place of birth, marriage and death) of those outside the author's own direct lineage, which exclusion makes for more interesting (because uninterrupted) reading but may be disappointing to collateral descendants in the future.

Thomas Hinds Duggan reveals a tremendous amount of research and careful documentation. An excellent bibliography is incorporated in the Notes which follow each generation. The Notes also include helpful explanations and the archival location of records referred to, as well as identification of personal contacts with relatives.

In the section "Distaff Families" the author has placed extensive records pertaining to her lines of SMITHWICK, HYMAN, ALSTON, and BERRY, records ranging from legal instruments to quaint family traditions, such as "the Devil's Handprint."

In order to prove my objectivity, I feel that I must criticize some point in each book I review. The only flaw that I have found in this one is on page 157, where the text seems to claim that Edward Smithwick gave the land for St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Edenton, North Carolina which is pictured above the text. When Mrs. Gracy conversed with the rector of that church in January 1963, he did not inform her that his research disproved that assumption--perhaps he had not yet reached the conclusion that he set forth in the book he published the following year, History of Saint Paul's Episcopal Church in Edenton, North Carolina (pp. 11-30).

True enough, in 1702 Edward Smithwick gave the land whereon was built the first church in Chowan Precinct, but, to quote the Reverend George Blake Holmes, that was "at or near the water," not within the boundaries of the present city of Edenton. Smithwick died 1715-16, and the present site of the church was selected after 1729 when Col. William Byrd reported that there was no place of worship of any kind in Edenton, according to Mr. Holmes.

But this minor ambiguity is utterly dwarfed by the stature of the book as a whole. Fascinating even to an outsider, it must be a source of delight and pride to all who are in any way related to the families treated therein.

No less edifying than the text are the splendid two-color maps and excellent drawings done by Watt Harris Jr. Not even included in the list of illustrations is one on page 117 which so poignantly epitomizes the aftermath of the Civil War that it brought tears to the eyes of this hard-boiled editor! Among other examples of good taste evidenced throughout the book is the winsome device of placing the dedication (to the author's grandchildren) within the embracing arms of a graceful tree.

This handsome volume was beautifully typed with wide margins, well bound, and fully indexed. The last section consists of obituaries, from one of which a quotation makes a fitting conclusion:

We are too sad to write more. We are too poor to erect costly monuments to the memory of dear father and mother. But we can and do pray God in his mercy to qualify us to lead lives that may serve as monuments to them, for ... the lives they lived were all that any earthly parents could bestow.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

Two charter members of Austin Genealogical Society have within the past year done what many of us should do, namely, put into print what we have accumulated in the pursuit of our hobby. Both of these ladies have compiled books for a limited group of people, and neither one is "pushing" the sale of her book. Hence these reviews are not intended to tempt you into reaching for your checkbook, but rather to inspire you to "go and do likewise."

Mrs. Lucie Clift Price, currently a member of our Society, has compiled a book composed of letters that her parents, Maggie Ellen Dunn and William H. Clift, wrote to each other in 1896 and 1897, before they were married on 30 November 1897. In 1895 they had met in the little town of Pottsboro (Grayson County, Texas) where W. H. Clift was principal of the school and Maggie had an elocution class. She was nineteen and he was twenty-four.

These are primarily love letters but other memorabilia are included, such as W. H. Clift's teacher's certificate in Grayson and Collin counties, his diploma from Grayson College at Whitewright in 1892, a transcript of his grades from the University of Texas in 1893-4, newspaper clippings from the Pottsboro Picayune, and a flyer advertising the Tioga (Grayson Co.) school in the fall of 1897. Also, there are reproductions of warrants paid by the Chickasaw Nation to W. H. Clift, Principal of Pottsboro High School, for the tuition and board of the Chickasaw Indian students. (These copies were obtained from the Oklahoma Historical Society which found 24 of these cancelled warrants.) A few pictures are included, and the wedding invitation and marriage license are reproduced also.

The letters reveal not only the customs of the times, but also some historical episodes—such as a great tornado in Sherman on 16 May 1896; the unveiling of a monument in Sherman 21 April 1897; the "Crash at Crush," which Maggie attended on 15 September 1896. (That was a publicity stunt put on by the M.K.T. Railroad near Waco, when two trains deliberately collided head on.)

Mrs. Price presented the books to her three children and ten grandchildren as Christmas gifts in 1976. She thoughtfully had enough printed for another generation of the descendants of Maggie and Will Clift.

Lucie titled her 255-page book Monuments of the Past, a quote from one of her mother's letters. It has a six-page index and is a most attractive hard-bound book for family distribution.

Isaac Thornton (1817-1906) - His Descendants and Some of His Forebears was compiled by Beatrice Thornton Keeling and Wanda Willard Smith. This book, bound in blue card stock, consists of 221 pages, including two pages of addenda and corrections and a 21-page full-name index.

The four-page Foreword, by former AGS member Wanda Smith, describes the efforts of the compilers to trace their Thornton ancestry. With the help of various other researchers, they have been working at this task since the 1940s. Traditionally, this Thornton family can be traced back to one Hosea Thornton the immigrant, who came from England about 1700 and settled in Virginia. He had two sons, Thomas and Josiah. Josiah emigrated to South Carolina and fathered 12 children, one of whom was named Thomas. This Thomas Thornton and Rebecca House were the parents of Isaac Thornton, born 1817.

Much effort has been spent in trying to find a link between this Thornton family and that of a noted Baptist preacher in Georgia, the Rev. Dozier Thornton (1755-1843). Many think that there is a connection, but it has not yet been proven. There were other Thorntons living in the same areas of Spartanburg County, South Carolina and Forsyth County, Georgia, but it has not yet been determined if they were related to the Isaac Thornton branch.

Many collateral families are discussed, including HOUSE, NUCKOLLS, and SPAKES. This book is as fully documented as was possible, and traditions are clearly labeled as such. The compilers made 200 copies of their book, all of which were "spoken for" beforehand. They placed about a dozen copies in strategically located libraries around the country, including Texas State Library, Genealogy Department.
Those of you who remember knowing Wanda Smith when she commuted to our meetings from Georgetown, Texas, will be interested in bringing yourselves up-to-date on her family since they have moved to Dallas. All who have an interest in the Thornton family will enjoy reading this family saga and will appreciate all the meticulous work which has gone into the production of this book.

Our 1971-73 indexes of AGS Quarterly are taking up more closet room than they are entitled to! In order to gain space, we will mail these full-name indexes to Volume XII through XIV for just $2.50 each. This is your chance to see if your "missing person" was mentioned in this quarterly in that three-year period. Make check to Austin Genealogical Society and send it to editor (address next page).

Pity the pretty French name Augier (oh-zhay). At the hands of semi-literate American clerks in the 19th Century it suffered such indignities as to become Auger and even Ague!

It Pays To Be a Genealogist. Having just filled out an application for a passport, I must say I don't see how anyone but a practicing genealogist ever acquires such a document. I was tempted to attach my basic five-generation lineage chart and have done with it. And have you heard the standard joke about passport pictures? If you look like your picture, you're too sick to travel!

James Jackson Sr. had 3 known bros & a sis: Isaas (m. Harriet Cavender, sis of Emeline); Edward (m. Lucy Cavender, niece of above); John (came to TX with James--whom did he marry?); Elizabeth (m. Clark Weems). Did all these people come to Texas?--Mrs. A. A. McDougle, 214 E. Edmonds, San Antonio TX 78214.

CAVENDER_DUKE_JACKSON_STOKES_WEEMS. Need info on Sarah Ann Nash daughter of Ira Nash of Gonzales County Texas. She was born ca 1822 Missouri; died ca 1874 Caldwell County Texas. Married 1st ? Tumlinson, 2nd on Feb 5, 1837 Washington County Texas, and 3rd on May 11, 1845 Gonzales County Texas to Jeremiah Roberts born Jan 9, 1801 Tenn., died 5 Feb 1866 Caldwell County, Texas. He is the son of Nathan Roberts and Abigail Bishop." --Robert Carl Tumey Sr., 811 East 31st St, Austin TX 78705.

On page 31A, Gonzales Co, appears:
I could not find a record of Sarah Tum-whatever marrying a Brown between 1836 and 1845, so I looked for a Brown-Nash marriage, in case she had divorced Littleton and taken back her maiden name. No luck. There was no Washington Co entry at all for Feb 5, 1837, as stated in above query, so I scrutinized each entry until I found on page 84:
I think all who have examined old handwritten records will agree that Bruner and Brown could be confused, and Tumlinson could easily be misread as Funilison. As for the difference in dates, I suggest that Mr. Tumey go to Brenham and compare the marriage record with the source of his statement.

MORAL: If you can't find it under any possible spelling, try the impossible!

Mr. Tumey has such a wonderful device printed on his letter paper; a three-generation lineage chart, starting with himself. It not only looks attractive but is a great time and space saver.
DID THE BURNING OF THE 1890 CENSUS SCHEDULES HASTEN ERECTION OF ARCHIVES BUILDING?

"The regular 1890 census schedules were destroyed or badly damaged by a fire in Washington on January 10, 1921. Practically all the schedules not then destroyed were destroyed by congressional authorization in 1933." My curiosity was piqued by this laconic statement in the indispensable Guide to Genealogical Records in the National Archives (National Archives Publication #64-8, for sale by Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington DC 20402). So I wrote to GSA to ask for more details, to include in the article on page 2 of this issue.

Believing that many census searchers would be interested in knowing how such a disastrous fire happened, and why the remnants of the census schedules were later destroyed, I left space for one enlightening paragraph and proceeded to type the pages of data on the Travis County Special Census.

To my happy surprise, the Legislative, Judicial and Fiscal Branch of the Civil Archives Division sent me quite a packet of interesting (but inconclusive) material on the subject, and the Industrial and Social Branch of that division advised me that they would reply by a date long past. Regrettably, we can wait no longer for that, but there is enough material at hand to make a whole article about the fire and the stimulus it provided toward reawakening Congress to the need for housing our national archives in a fireproof building.

In the Congressional Record -- House, Vol. 60, Pt. 2 (66th Congress, 3d Session), pp. 1238-39, appears the heading "Fire in Commerce Department Building." On 11 Jan 1921, Senator Reed Smoot of Utah announced that there had been a disastrous fire in the basement of that building, destroying valuable census data. He referred to four previous fires in government buildings, reported to have been "started by employees carelessly throwing down a lighted cigarette stub," and advocated an order prohibiting employees from smoking while at work.

Senator Smoot asked for an investigation of the Commerce Building fire because it occurred in what was supposed to be a fireproof vault; in fact, just about as good a vault as we have for any of our records.

Senator Poindexter of Washington reported that the Washington Herald headlines added: "Census Data of 120 Years Ruined by Fire and Water. Irreplaceable Records Stored in Basement of Commerce Building Destroyed." He suggested that the lesson to be drawn from the occurrence was "the advisability of the Government constructing an archives building for storing its irreplaceable records . . . ."

In 1914, Senator Poindexter went on, Congress passed an act authorizing the construction of a fireproof archives building where valuable governmental records could not only be preserved but also "scientifically arranged and made available for the use of those to whom their use is valuable."

The senator pointed out that Congress had continually failed to make the appropriation for the building, despite the fact that the Government had been empowered to acquire the property and construct the building, and an appropriation for the drawing of the plans had been made. He presumed that "records of several times the value of such a building, if it had been constructed within a reasonable time after Congress had authorized it . . . have been destroyed since the authorization went into effect."

Senator Poindexter urged the Committee on Appropriations (mentioning that Senator Smoot was on that committee!) to make at least a preliminary appropriation for an archives building.

Senator Smoot's rejoinder was that he had brought up the subject in the Senate "not three weeks ago." To the importance of preserving public records in an archives building he added the point that transferring such records to a central storage place would release the space they then occupied in various public buildings, thus eliminating the need to rent some private buildings as was currently done.

On the same day, in the House of Representatives, as reported in the Congressional Record (supra, p. 1268) Mr. Fess of Ohio discussed the disastrous fire, emphasizing the "importance of the Government taking expeditious action in the erection of an archives building, fireproof." He reported that he had obtained from the fire department a record of fires that had occurred in public buildings in Washington: over 200 between 1873 and 1916.

Congressman Fess mentioned also the 1825 fire in the library, which nearly destroyed the collection of Jefferson's books. Of 55,000 volumes in the library, only 20,000 were saved.

The Representative from Ohio displayed photographs of various repositories of documents in the city: wooden shelves in the attic of the Treasury Building piled high with valuable documents, and circular wooden shelving underneath its sunken yard similarly laden.

He stated that the vast collection of documents pertaining to the Expeditionary Forces /World War I/ were in a temporary building at 6th and B streets. Civil War records were removed from the War and Navy Building to make room for clerks when World War I started, and had been stored in a garage at 24th and M streets /editorial shudder/.

Mr. Fess stated that ours was the only nation "of any significance" that had no national archives building, and in fact the Federal Government lagged behind many states in records preservation. He named the eleven states then using old-fashioned buildings (fires had occurred in West Virginia, Missouri and Louisiana); the eight having new buildings (i.e., capitols with fireproof protection, including Texas), and the eight with separate, fireproof archives buildings. Two states had the last under construction.

Representative Fess concluded with the information that since the first steps toward building the archives in 1916, a commission had selected a site between 12th and 13th streets and B and C streets N.W.

Mr. Reed of New York announced that the Constitution, the Declaration of Independence and the treaties were in a non-fireproof safe in the non-fireproof State, War, and Navy Building.

Next, Mr. Fess brought up the economic factors of renting storage space and of rising construction costs, concluding: "I appeal to the Appropriations Committee of the House to take action without delay toward the erection of this building. The fire last night is an emphasis of its necessity. /Applause/"

Two days later, 13 Jan 1921 (Congressional Record p. 1340), Senator Jones of Washington, in relation to the fire in the Commerce Department Building, read a letter from a government employee of his acquaintance. The writer stated: "...the fire in the Census Bureau. I am informed by a party employed there that it was fired by a party going through the carpenter shop, where there were some shavings, and threw down a stub of a cigarette, and that the estimated damage is $50,000; but it will cost three times that to replace the damage done.

This cannot be considered unbiased evidence of the cause of the fire, for the letter was "in the nature of a petition" to ban smoking. The writer concluded: "It [Smoking] has cost not less than $250,000 in loss of time taken by the employees alone, not saying anything of the very great discomfort it has been to the other employees who do not smoke."

So, as tragic as it was (to genealogists and other researchers), the fire that destroyed the 1890 Census did have one good aftereffect: the fire re-opened Congressional discussion of constructing a fireproof building to preserve the nation's archival treasurer. But it was not until June 1934 that an act of Congress provided for the National Archives Building that was erected at Eighth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue N.W.

Very near the Capitol, the building has entrances on both Pennsylvania and Constitution avenues. It is a handsome rectangular edifice with stately Corinthian colonnades on all four façades.

In it, the priceless records of our country are preserved in fireproof, air-conditioned, temperature-regulated massive concrete vaults, in specially designed steel equipment, according to The World Book Encyclopedia (1938 ed., Vol. A, p. 369).

So much for the fire, but why destroy the remnants of the 1890 Census? I believe the clue is in the Herald headline "Census Data... Ruined by Fire and Water." Most of the schedules not actually consumed by fire were so charred or stuck together and streaked by water that they were useless, presumably.

Remaining Fragments of 1890 Census. In the National Archives is a card index to the 6,160 names on the surviving 1890 schedules. Included are parts of five Texas counties: Ellis, Hood, Kaufman, Rusk, and Trinity (National Archives General Information Leaflet No. 5).

After giving storage space to this largely unusable mass of paper for over ten years, the chief clerk of the Department of Commerce must have decided to get rid of it along with other records that are routinely destroyed under an act entitled "An act to authorize and provide for the disposition of useless papers in the Executive Departments," approved 16 Feb 1889. A list of papers earmarked for destruction was sent (on 14 Dec 1932) to the Librarian of Congress, who replied that none seemed to "need to be reserved on account of any historical interest."

Next, on 19 Dec 1932, letters were sent to Texas's own John Nance Garner as Speaker of the House of Representatives and to the President of the Senate, recommending "that authority be granted for the disposition of the documents and files of papers mentioned, so that they may be sold as waste paper or otherwise disposed of in accordance with law."

The Christmas holidays being near, apparently the actual destruction of the doomed census schedules was postponed until 1933.

It would be interesting to learn how far astray I have wandered in my assumptions from the partial data available! --H.H.R.
