On the evening of April 25, St. Edward's College for the first time entered the intercollegiate debating field. That evening a dual debate was held with Daniel Baker College of Brownwood, on the subject, "Resolved that the United States should join the League of Nations". Both teams representing St. Edward's were victorious. Judge William Blakeslee of Austin was chairman of the debate and Hon. Robert H. Hamilton of the Commission of Appeals, Prof. T.A. Gullett, principal of Allan High School, Austin, and Dr. Robert A. Law, head of the English department of the University of Texas were the judges. ...

Hey now! Jack Meagher certainly is doing wonderful things for St. Ed's. Jack seems to realize that someday, not many years hence, St. Ed's shall have grown to such an extent that as athletic director he shall need an assistant. A candidate for this position appeared on August 11 at 1:15 A.M. in a tiny 9-pound bundle, to wit, William Meagher... Head coach Jack Meagher reports that Knute Rockne, Notre Dame's famous football mentor, has agreed to conduct a coaching school at Saint Edward's in the summer of 1925... Coaches from High Schools and Colleges all over the South & West will attend.

A bound volume of the first issues of the Echo, running from 1888 to 1892, has been given to the University Archives by Francis Renz, Austin citizen, who was a student of St. Edward's in 1898. The volume is one that he received from his father. Mr. Renz also presented the University a large book giving an account, with photographs, of the Catholic educational exhibit at the World's Columbian Exposition held in Chicago during the year 1893. The book was published in 1894.

An impressive memorial service for the dead of the order was held by the St. Edward's University Council, 1559, Knights of Columbus, Sunday evening, Nov. 15, in the council chamber. An impressive eulogy of Brother Flavian, deceased member of the University council, was given by Meredith N. Posey, a member of the Capital City council & instructor in English at the University of Texas. Posey has lived in Austin all his life & knew Brother Flavian as a friend.

Father Schumacher Given Unique Honor
Former President of the University Elected a Member of the Town & Gown Club
A signal honor was conferred on the University recently when Rev. Matthew Schumacher, C.S.C., Ph.D., former president and now dean of studies of the University, was elected to membership in the Town & Gown Club of Austin.

The Town & Gown Club is an organization made up of the leading business men and educators of Austin. The membership is limited to 30, one half being business and professional men of Austin and the other half being faculty members of the University of Texas. Father Schumacher is the first member of the St. Edward's faculty to have been elected to membership. ... Dr. W.M.W.
Splawn, president of the University of Texas, is also a member of the club.

and high school graduate in 1908 (sic), is office manager for Elgin-Butler Brick & Tile Co., Austin, Texas. He writes that he was married on March 1, 1916 to Miss Helen Shearer of Austin, Texas. They have children, Marion aged 9, and Francis James, age 6. While at St. Edward's, Ed. played right guard on the Junior football team in 1903 and later was a tackle on the college team of 1907. He has been employed with the Elgin-Butler Brick & Tile Co. for the past seventeen years.
The following letters were found in the Texas State Archives in the Comptroller of Public Accounts Record Group, being documents concerning payments for services rendered to the Republic. The letters are in Box 304-126 of the Audited Military Claims (ca 9,500 files) which were paid between 1835 and 1846. Mrs. Sam G. Cook and a few other members of Austin Genealogical Society are presently in the process of making abstracts of these files for publication in the near future.

Your editor thought these two letters so interesting that they should be published in full, and has attempted to supply some brief explanatory notes after each letter. A facsimile of the last paragraph of the first letter appears below.

To - John R. Foster & E. C. Pettus

You are hereby appointed Sub-Agents, to proceed to Goliad, and deliver the letter addressed to the Commandants &c - and let the Commandants of that post, take a copy - You will cause the original to be forwarded to the advance body of Volunteers from Bejar -

This done, you will forthwith proceed to procure, Carts & teams - either by pressing - hiring - or purchasing, the same - and have them at Copano, by the 25th inst. - when Money, or Drafts on the Pro. Government, will be drawn in favour of the owners - You will call on the Commandant of Fort Goliad, to aid you, by appointing some suitable person residing there - or make such appointment yourselves, and your Agents, acts & doings shall be duly ratified & confirmed -
It is expected you will lose no time - Dispatch is important - and punctuality and the strictest obedience to orders, is expected from you.

It is the first duty of a soldier & officer - and I hope to see a good example set by two old members of the "Brazos Guards."

[Apparently this letter was offered by John R. Foster in 1838 to substantiate his claim for repayment for services rendered in obedience to Fannin's orders.]

NOTES

John R. Foster was the son of John Foster who in 1822 came to Texas from Mississippi. They lived in Fort Bend County on the Brazos River - hence "Brazos Guards."

I have not been able to identify Edwin C. Pettus, styled "Col. Pettus" on reverse. There were several men of that surname in Texas early, living in Austin, Brazoria, Colorado, Fayette, Fort Bend, Matagorda, Waller and Wharton counties, according to The Handbook of Texas.

"the Commandants" at Goliad on 8 Jan 1836 -- When General Sam Houston reached Goliad 14 Jan 1836, Dr. James Grant, self-styled "commander-in-chief of the Federal Army," had relieved Captain Philip Dimmitt in favor of Captain Peyton S. Wyatt of the Alabama Volunteers. Francis W. Johnson, one of the advocates of invading Matamoros, was also at Goliad vying with J.W. Fannin for the title of commander-in-chief - No wonder Fannin spoke of the Commandants of the fort!

"Advance body of Volunteers": soldiers moving from the Alamo toward Goliad.

Bejar - the fort (presidio) of San Antonio de Bexar; the Alamo.

Pressing - impressing; seizing needed supplies in the name of the government of Texas.

Copano Bay is an extension of Aransas Bay. The port of Copano was established in 1785 as a port of entry for the Mexican Army, explorers, and missionaries.

"Pro. Government" - The Provisional Government met at San Felipe de Austin in Austin County 15 Nov 1835 - 1 Mch 1836.
Brazos Guards - a volunteer company, presumably organized by Fannin. The z is made like a printed capital Z, on the line, without a descender such as in a written g or y. This has been interpreted as s or ss in Brazos or Gonzales.

James Walker Fannin Jr. was the son of Dr. Isham Fannin - possibly he bore the name of his paternal grandfather or an uncle. He was adopted by his maternal grandfather, James W. Walker. In his signature the scribbled letters Jr are attached to the n of Fannin, and has been interpreted as Fanning in some cases.

In 1834 Fannin moved his family from Georgia to Velasco, near the mouth of the Brazos River. As captain of the Brazos Guards, he participated in the Battle of Gonzales on 2 October 1835.

According to The Handbook of Texas, the General Council of Texas, acting on Fannin's advice, established an auxiliary volunteer corps 5 December 1835. That suggests a possible explanation of the abbreviation under his signature on the letter above: Cont. Aully? - Commandant of the Auxiliary? However, it looks more like Arlly or Artly for Artillery. On the second letter he used the title "Colonel Commandant, Army of Texas." General Sam Houston had commissioned him colonel in the regular army on 7 December 1835. There was sharp rivalry for the title of Commander-in-Chief.

LETTER # 2

Head Quarters
Army of Texas
Goliad 14th Feby 1836

To

John R. Foster & Geo. Sutherland

You are hereby appointed Sub-Agents and contractors, for the Army of Texas; and are empowered and strictly enjoined to procure, forthwith all the Teams and Waggons & carts, from the Guadalupe to Navidad, and its immediate neighbourhood - With full power to purchase, hire, or press, any and all conveyances; and proceed to Dimetts landing, or any other point where the cargo of the Caroline may be landed, and demand from the public Agent, or store keeper, such Provisions & Ammunition, as may be most needed -

Taking care to take principally Flour, Coffee, sugar, Powder, Lead &c. and giving a receipt for the same, & taking a bill of lading for each Cart.

Dispatch is requisite, as we may soon be shut up in close Garrison - and are now nearly without Bread-stuff.

If it be possible to forward some 25 to 50 Bbls flour to Bejar do so -- I submit it to your discretion.

That place will soon be closely invested by a superior force, and our men are without Bread stuff.

I rely much upon your zeal and activity - and exhort you to use all your industry

You are empowered to hire Drivers, and call upon a portion of the Militia for a guard - A notice from you, will be attended to promptly, and an escort furnished.

Give me the earliest intelligence of your movements.

NOTES

George Sutherland in 1834 established a merchandise business at Texana on the Navidad in Jackson Municipality. He was a kinsman of John Sutherland Menefee who also was a merchant at Texana.

The Navidad is east of the Guadalupe, and both are east of Goliad.

Philip Dimmitt was appointed Public Store Keeper at Lavaca Bay (east of Copano Bay) in February 1836, meaning that his warehouse was the designated place of deposit for government stores landed there.

As Fannin hoped to assemble a large army to invade Matamoros (and Travis had refused orders to abandon the fort at Bexar), his first priority was the accumulation of supplies at Goliad, with the welfare of the men in the Alamo a distant second.

After heated disagreements, William Barret Travis and James (Jim) Bowie finally reached a compromise about having joint command of the troops in the Alamo on the day this letter was written. This was three weeks before the tragic end of the siege. On the 16th, Santa Anna's forces, having crossed the Rio Grande, started their march towards Bejar, 119 miles away. The siege of the Alamo began on February 23rd, the Mexican Army closely investing (surrounding) the fort for 13 days before they were able to conquer the small force of brave men within on March 6th.

On page 42 of our June issue is an article about a Mexican War medal issued to James H. Weatherbee. The pencilled sketch sent by the owner did not reproduce, so she, Mildred A. Jones, has kindly sent a photoreproduction and detailed description.

Names of battles are listed in the outer rim of the medal: Tabasco - Veracruz - Palo Alto - Buena Vista - Cerro Gordo - Churubusco - Chapultepec - San Pasqual.

In the upper third of the shield are a sailing ship, crossed guns and (apparently) swords, and a cannon. Small stars follow the outer perimeter down both sides. Inside a wreath are markings that, except for MEXICO and 1846, defy identification in this reproduction.

Mrs. Jones generously offers to send this interesting heirloom to anyone who can prove descent from the hero to whom it was awarded. Her address is: 706 West La Plata Drive, Farmington NM 87401.

As clues to its provenance, Mrs. Jones writes that the medal was found among the possessions of Mrs. John Oliver Shattuck (nee Gladys Jones). Her husband Oliver "ranched and cowboyed" around Carlsbad NM ca 1912-1940.
MUSTER ROLL OF McNELLY'S SCOUTS

On a photostat (two sheets, ca 22 x 17") of unknown provenance is a hand-drawn muster roll of Captain L.H. McNelly's Scouts, marked "Copy." The form was hand drawn and marked off into columns headed thus: No. - Names Present and Absent - Rank - Enlisted [over] When, Where, By Whom, and Period - Last Paid [over] By Whom and To What Time - and finally, Remarks. Data has been abstracted in an abbreviated format below.

First, a little historical background found in The Handbook of Texas: Leander H. McNelly was born in Virginia in 1844 and moved to Texas in 1860, settling in Washington County. On 13 Sep 1861, at San Antonio, McNelly enlisted in Company F, 5th Regiment Texas Mounted Volunteers (Thomas Green's regiment of H.H. Sibley's brigade).

Green commended McNelly for valorous duty at Val Verde, New Mexico, and made him an enlisted aide [Volunteer] on his staff. After fighting with General Green through the New Mexico campaign, then at the Battle of Galveston, and on into Louisiana, in December 1863 McNelly was given a commission as captain of scouts to raise a company of mounted troops. The company listed below had four officers and 69 privates and non-coms. They engaged in several skirmishes before being assigned to apprehend deserters, in April 1865. "McNelly's company of mounted scouts was one of the last Confederate units in the state to disband" (Handbook).

Since the last date shown on this muster roll is 1 Feb 1864, it is not known if all these men were in the company at the time of disbandment. However, all had enlisted for the duration of the War.

The "Remarks" column contains only two notations: men either "Transferred to Capt. McNelly's Company of Scouts Feb 1st 1864" or "Transferred from state troops at Galveston Feb 1 - 1864," so that column was omitted to save space.

The name of one captain is spelled variously Leobnitz, Lebtentz and Lebo-nitz or vitz. The copyist's handwriting is clear, the questionable letter certainly is not w nor does it resemble the v of Galveston. I was trying to make it Lebowitz or Lebovitz until I spied a Captain H.T. Loebnitz in 4th TX Cavalry.

Texas in the War 1861-1865 by Col. Harold B. Simpson shows that Thomas Green commanded a brigade composed of the 4th, 5th and 7th regiments of Texas Cavalry, and his staff included Joseph H. Beck, Joseph D. Sayers, and "Vol. Leander McAnally." In Texas in the Confederacy by Harry M. Henderson, we find Dr. J.H. McPhail an assistant surgeon on Col. Thomas Green's staff, 5th Texas Volunteer Cavalry, at one point. Lt. Col. Edward Waller Jr. commanded the 13th Texas Cavalry Battalion. In 1863 there was a captain Thomas Poland on the staff of Lt. Col. Walter P. Lane -- possibly the copyist overlooked the "Col."

Efforts to positively identify other officers [in the "Last Paid By" column] under whom these men had served have been unsuccessful. If readers will send such identifications to the editor, they will be published in our next issue. The editor will be glad to give these photostats to a requester.

[SAME DITTO MARKS]
Falling heir to photostats of four large, handwritten pages headed by the above title, the editor was inspired to learn more about the subject. The Handbook of Texas devotes ten columns to "Indian Relations: [1] Colonial Period, [2] Republic of Texas, [3] Statehood," all recommended reading. The immediately relevant statements may be abstracted as follows:

"The policy of peace toward the Indians returned with [President Sam] Houston's second administration." A treaty was concluded at the Caddo village in August 1842; in March 1843 a council was held at Tehuacana Creek, and a temporary treaty was made in August at the Comanche encampment.

This was followed by a permanent treaty hammered out on 29 September 1843, signed by representatives of the Delaware, Chickasaw, Waco, Tawakoni, Kichai, Anadarko, Hainai, Biloxi and Cherokee tribes. "The Comanche, still smarting from their ambush in the Council House Fight [q.v.] in 1840, refused to attend this meeting, as did the Wichita. But on October 9 [1844] at Tehuacana Creek, the Comanche finally appeared, together with the smaller tribes, to meet Houston himself, to exchange gifts and oratory, and to sign a treaty." [Houston's signature is not on my copy of the treaty.] The treaty was ratified by the Senate 24 Jan 1845.

Since most tribes had no written language, the spelling of their names varied widely. In the preamble of this treaty they appear as Comanche, Keechi, Waco, Caddo, Anadahkah, Ioni [?], Delaware, Shaunee, Cherokee, Lepan and Tahwahkano. Tehuacana Creek (which joins Brazos River in McLennan County) is spelled Tahwaccaro by the scribe of the document.

The "whereas-es" refer to past hostilities between the white and red men of Texas, and state that "both parties are now willing to open the path of lasting peace, friendship and trade, and are desirous to establish certain solemn rules for the regulation of their mutual intercourse. The Great Spirit will look with delight upon their friendship, and will frown in anger upon their enmity."

Articles II and III stated that a line should be drawn, separating the hunting grounds of the white and the red man, running from Red River with the upper Cross Timbers to the Comanche Peak, then to the old fort of San Saba, and thence southwesterly to the Rio Grande. Apparently this was unacceptable, for these paragraphs were marked out and replaced by "... the Government of Texas shall permit no bad men to cross the line into the hunting grounds of the Indians," but if any were found, the Indians should take them, unharmed, to one of the Agents.

The Indians agreed to make no treaty with any nation at war with Texas; to warn Texans if any tribe was about to make war against them; and to punish any tribesmen who stole from Texans and to restore their property.

Articles VII and VIII state that the Government of Texas shall have the right to establish trading houses, and was to keep in them such articles as the Indians "may need for their support and comfort." And "when peace is fully established ... the Indians shall be supplied with powder, lead, guns, spears and other arms to enable them to kill game and live in plenty."
The Indians agreed not to sell "any property to the whites, except such as are authorized to trade with them by the Government of Texas."

Other articles declared that no whiskey or other intoxicating liquor should be sold to Indians; that the Government should "make such presents to the Indians as the President from time to time shall deem proper"; and that he might send to them blacksmiths, schoolmasters, and families to teach them the English language, the Christian religion, how to cultivate the soil, and to work mines.

The Indians agreed not to capture or kill women and children if war should break out, or to attack unarmed warriors. They agreed to honor the white flag of truce, and both sides agreed to give up any prisoners they were holding.

Article XXI establishes an annual council of whites and Indians, adding: "presents will be made to the chiefs." Finally: "They further agree and declare that the President may make such arrangements and regulations with the several tribes of Indians as he may think best for their peace and happiness." Sam Houston certainly was the Great White Father to them!

The signatures are below what appears to be a large gold seal with two ribbons attached. Unfortunately, although the text is perfectly clear, many of the names are too faded to read, and the titles running down the sides even more so. Names preceded by an asterisk herein may be found in the Handbook.

In the center of the page, *Thos. I. Smith, *J.C. Neill and *E. Morehouse are bracketed as Commissioners. To the left are Daniel G. Watson, *L.H. Williams, *Jesse Chisholm [of Scotch and Cherokee ancestry], then four illegible names, each signed with "his + mark," one of which may be *Jim Shaw.

Next in succession are signatures of Benj. Sloat, Geo. W. Adams, Eli Smith, R.H. Porter, Stephen T. Slater, one illegible, then *John F. Torrey [whose trading house was four miles from the Indian council ground where this treaty was made]. After the marks of a Caddo Captain, a Cherokee Chief, and two Lipans, we find P.E. Smith and ... Winn, Secretary of Commissioners.

Incidentally, sketches in the Handbook reveal that of the above men, *James Clinton Neill died in 1845, *Leonard H. Williams was killed by the Comanche in 1846, *Thomas I. Smith died in 1847 and *Edwin Morehouse in 1849. Hollywood may make a Grade B movie about the Curse of the Tehuacana Creek Treaty!

It is indeed unfortunate that the polysyllabic, hyphenated Indian names are too dim for me to decipher. I would be glad to pass that task to anyone who may be interested, in hopes of finding an ancestor!

One name is followed by "or White Plume," another by "Lame Man." Others seem to be Red Bear, José Maria, Bear Eye, San Louis, and Black Cat. Each name is followed by the word Seal in a scrawl, then "his + mark," then his title or rank, and tribe. The Comanche had a War Chief and two Chiefs; the Keechi, War Chief and Chief; the Waco, three Chiefs; the Caddo, a Chief and a Speaker; Anadahkeh, a Chief; the Ionie, a Chief; the Delaware, two Chiefs; the Shawnee, one Chief; three Delaware Captains; four Caddo Captains -- as well as I can decipher.

Your editor would welcome additions and corrections to this attempted interpretation of a very interesting historical document.
AM I MY OWN COUSIN? *
Helen (Hoskins) Rugeley

Family historians are always pleased when youngsters show an interest in the family tree. While looking at family portraits, my young great-niece told me about a classmate who constantly boasted about her descent from a rather obscure passenger on the Mayflower.

"Well, Kimberley," I replied, "you can beat her at that game," and proceeded to make charts tracing our line back to Elder William Brewster, which she gleefully took back to her boarding school in New York State.

This incident reminded me of an odd quirk in our line which might amuse the readers of this publication. Extracting only pertinent maternal ancestors from my basic ahnentafel reveals the following situation:

1. Helen Julia Hoskins
2. Cordelia Brown Harwood
3. Thomas Franklin Harwood
4. Florence Cornelia Batchelor
5. Benjamin Franklin Batchelor
6. Julia Amanda Turner (1-great)
7. Amasa Turner (2-great)

24. Solomon Lincoln
25. Hannah Stetson
26. Samuel Whiton
27. Margaret Tower
29. Mehitable Chittenden
30. David Jacobs
31. Sarah Cushing
32. Edward Foster
33. Jemima Turner
34. John Turner Jr. (7-great)
35. Ann James
36. Humphrey Turner (8-great)

*Children of brothers are first cousins.
Humphrey Turner (1593-1673) and family came from Devonshire to New Plymouth in 1628 but in 1633 moved to Scituate where he erected the first tannery in Plymouth Colony. He was active in civic and church affairs, as were most of his eight children. Four of these were born in England, and, remarkably, two were given the name John - the first and third sons. Tradition has it that they were named for two godfathers who bore that name; whatever the reason, they are referred to in town records as John Turner, Senior and John Turner, Junior (who was called "my son young John Turner" in Humphrey's will), and frequently served on the same committee or jury, as the records show.

Although the brothers were members of rival congregations in Scituate, Harvey Hunter Pratt states: "They did not actively participate in the acrimonious squabble that for a long time was kept up between north and south religious societies although each was attached to a rival church gathering. Indeed, so amiable was the elder John that he was influential and forceful in an attempt to bring the two together, which nearly succeeded."

It would not be surprising for descendants of such "amiable" brothers to intermarry, but the re-joining of the Turner lines occurred post facto in this case. When John Senior's granddaughter Jemima Turner wed Edward Foster in 1705, there was no link to John Junior's descendants. But the Fosters' granddaughter's daughter (Jael Whiton) in 1794 married Harris Turner, great-grandson of Young son John.

And since the line of the elder John Turner multiplied more rapidly, Harris Turner married not in his own generation but the daughter of his fourth cousin.

As I figure it (Correct me if I have miscalculated!), Humphrey Turner is my 8-great-grandfather by my line back to John Junior and my 9-great-grandfather via John Senior. Needless to say, I have no objections to the extra step in my ahnentafel, since he's the one who gave us a Mayflower line!

POSTSCRIPT for Those Unacquainted with an Ahnentafel (Ancestor Table): Starting with yourself as #1, your father is #2 and your mother #3. The father of any person is twice that person's number and the mother is twice plus one. Conversely, pick an even number anywhere on the chart, half it, and find that man's child.

Ideally, there are no missing numbers in an ahnentafel. By doubling the numbers that have been identified, mine goes through #292,083,376,128, but I'm sure you realize there are thousands of names missing. Also, one person is likely to appear several times, as he is the progenitor of more than one of your ancestors. There probably were not 292 billion people alive when my grandfather of that number was on earth!

BOOK REVIEW

RECORDS OF IMMANUEL LUTHERAN CHURCH, Wiedeville, Washington County, Texas, 1871-1940: Register. Compiled, Transcribed and Translated by Dr. Jack Autrey Dabbs and Dr. Edward C. Breitenkamp, (c) 1989. Hardbound, 8½ x 11", pp. 318 + xxx; 100-page full-name index; 6-page geographical index. $25 (Texas sales tax $1.88) from J.A. Dabbs, 2806 Cherry Lane, Austin TX 78703 (512) 472-7463.

This fine book is enhanced by a very clear map of "Major Germanic Emigration Centers to Washington County, Texas"; a highway map showing early settlements in that county; and a number of drawings and photographs of historic Immanuel Lutheran Church. Preceded by the history and constitution of the congregation, the names of the members in 1881 and why they left the church make very interesting reading. This section is especially valuable in that only those over 21 could "sign in their own hand," so it reveals whether a person had reached majority by a certain year. Lists and charts of those who participated in communion on various dates indicate family groups.

Baptismal Records start with 1871 and run through 1941. They show birth and baptismal dates, names of parents (including mother's maiden name), sponsors and pastor. Often the place of origin of one or both parents is given -- a welcome item indeed, especially because the compilers have gone to great lengths to ascertain the correct spelling and to locate the districts on the map.

Confirmation Records (1872-1943) show the confirmant's birth date and name of his/her father. An item that must have sentimental value to descendants is the scriptural text of the confirmation sermon.

Statistics on Weddings (1871-1941) include date, name, residence, and occupation of the groom. The bride's parents are not named, but her residence is (in Germany or Texas), and sometimes witnesses are named.

Death Records (1871-1936) include a remarkable amount of information: place and date of birth and death or funeral; marital status; maiden name for women; survivors; cause of death; often the text of the funeral sermon; and various notes.

In nearly all the rites recorded in this book, the officiant is named. Some records include more details than others, as is usual in books of this nature.

The Name Index is a joy to behold. Preceded by a clear, detailed explanation, each entry shows maiden name of person listed or his wife, if a man; the rite (communion, baptism, confirmation, marriage, burial/death), and the role of the listed person (parent, witness, sponsor, survivor, pastor). It even indicates the number of the paragraph or entry on the page, and the full given names, if only one was used in the entry.

The Geographical Index is introduced by a paragraph naming its source references. Longitude and latitude are given for obscure places, which is a service "above and beyond the call of duty." AND -- these gentlemen even supplied the present name when a place has been renamed since these records were written!

Copious thanks for producing this valuable work are due to AGS Board Member Dr. Dabbs and to Dr. Breitenkamp, both former foreign-language professors at Texas A&M University. These records of Immanuel Lutheran Church at Wiedeville were written in German, mostly the old, difficult German script, which made them inaccessible to the majority of descendants and other genealogical researchers. The translators acknowledge the assistance of the pastor, the Rev. Rudy Kelling, in their Herculean task.
"The German immigrants who settled in Washington County came from such centers as Hanover, Baden, Wurttemberg, Poznan, Westphalia, West Prignitz, Hesse, and smaller political entities," stated the publishers.

This meticulously neat book is virtually free of typographical errors, which is a strong indication of its accuracy. The Geographical Index was especially difficult to type -- our compliments to the typist or computer operator. The first half of the book is particularly pleasing to the eye.

Records of Immanuel Lutheran Church should be of great interest to all who are seeking ancestors from the designated areas, whether or not they settled in Washington County, Texas.

"A Commemorative Restoration" Follow-up

On pages 22-23 of the March 1989 issue of AGS appeared the article entitled "A Commemorative Restoration: Charles Meredith 1817-1889" by Wallie Mitchell. In a footnote your editor referred to "Mr. Mitchell," but a subsequent letter informs us that Wallie is a female German name. Apologies to Ms Mitchell (we still don't know whether she is Miss or Mrs). LADIES! if your given name is a surname (or "sir-name" as they print it in a certain quarterly) or an ambiguous name like Leslie, Chris, Sam or Gene, PLEASE include Miss, Mrs. or Mr. in your return address. Your correspondents do not want to offend you by guessing wrong.

OYEZ or OYES!

Puzzled about this legal term? Well, it is not the plural of a word "oye," nor is it Brooklynese for "Oh, you all," nor just a word of agreement, "Oh, yes!"

It comes from the Latin audire through the French infinitive oir used as a noun. A court of oyer and terminer (literally, to hear and determine) was one which (in U.S.A.) was commissioned to hear and decide "treasons, felonies and misdemeanors." Pronounced OH-yes, the word was cried three times to call a court to order or to make an announcement. In the plural: "The clerk's oyesses were loud and clear."

Most courts, probably baffled by the meaning and pronunciation as time went on, have settled for "Hear ye! Hear ye! Hear ye!"

THOSE LINE-FILLING BLANKS!

When we are transcribing an old will or other document we often find lines drawn from the last word to the right margin. These were placed there to prevent the insertion of a word or words that might change the writer's intentions. ----------

If we copy these dashes or blanks in our typescript, our readers may assume that they represent words we were unable to decipher. So, unless you are typing it verbatim, line for line, it is better to omit those blanks.
The Hessians of the American Revolution
by W. Thomas (Tom) Reeder
1904 Mountain View Road
Austin, Texas 78703

It was rather well known during the American Revolution that the American rebels were opposed not only by British troops, but also by a group of about 29,000 Germans referred to in most history books as "Hessians." The popular idea is that King George III of England hired these "Hessians" by paying a fee for each soldier to the German royalty who conscripted the soldier and made him available to the British cause. More precisely, while the largest single contingent did come from Hesse-Cassel, these German troops actually originated from three other German states as well: Brunswick, Hesse-Hanau, and Waldeck.

The Seven Years War (1756-1763) in which England was allied with Prussia, Hanover, and Brunswick against Austria, France, Sweden, Russia, and Saxony, ended for Prussia with the Treaty of Hubertusburg. Under the Treaty, Prussia retained Silesia, coveted by Austria. For Britain and France a treaty was signed at Paris by which France relinquished all claim to French Canada, New Orleans, and all other North American territory east of the Mississippi River. On the North American continent, the Seven Years War was the final of several "French and Indian" wars.

Winston Churchill characterized the Seven Years War as the "First World War," because it extended from India in the East to America in the West. The great English Secretary of State, William Pitt, "designed and won" the war. In Pennsylvania the French Fort Duquesne was taken and destroyed and the place was renamed Pittsburgh. Pitt served as de facto king for the last four years of George II's life. When George III ascended to the throne in October 1760, he meant to be king in fact as well as in title. In October 1761 Pitt was forced to resign, assuming the title of Earl of Chatham.

George III, third in the line of Hanoverian kings of England, was the first born in England, therefore qualifying as "thoroughly" English. Two of his sisters were married to two Electors of German states: Frederick II of Hesse-Cassel, age 56, and Charles II, Duke of Brunswick. These "Electors" were royalty, inheriting that title, entitling them to participate in the election of the emperor of the Holy Roman Empire, the boundaries of which roughly approximated those of modern Germany (East and West) and Austria. It therefore was natural for George III to turn to his recent allies, brothers-in-law, and to the land of his father and grandfather for help against the American rebels.

Commager reports that George III had difficulties raising an army to fight the rebel Americans. He tried, without success, to hire soldiers from Empress Catherine of Russia and a brigade from Holland. Frederick the Great of Prussia refused, but other German princes "sniffed the cadaverous taint of lucrative war." The Earl of Sherburne was one of those in the British House of Lords opposing military action against the Americans: "In a worthy cause we can get soldiers enough. In the Seven Years War Britain was able to raise an army of 300,000 men; now she cannot find 50,000 men." Lord Camden sympathized with the Earl of Sherburne. Lord North supported George III, stating that "reducing America to a proper constitutional state of obedience being the great object of Parliament . . ."

The disunity of Germany was demonstrated by more than the failure of Frederick the Great to assist Britain. Baron Friedrich Wilhelm von Steuben, who had been allied with Britain as a captain in the Prussian Army during the Seven Years War, came to America in 1777, and volunteered to help the American rebels. He played an important role at Valley Forge, even though he could speak no English, helping to train Washington's troops, and ultimately commanded American troops in action, finishing the war as a major general.

German assistance to George III was not limited to the 29,000 troops sent to America. Five Hanoverian battalions were sent to Gibraltar, allowing English soldiers stationed there to be reassigned to America. Hanover, of course, belonged to George III.

The first treaty for troop support was signed on 9 January 1776 with the Prince of Brunswick-Luneburg. Other treaties were signed on 15 January with Hesse-Cassel, 5 February with Hesse-Hanau, and 25 April with Waldeck. For £160,000, the Prince of Brunswick-Luneburg was to furnish a 4,300-man force consisting of one battalion of unmounted dragoons [a dragoon was a mounted infantryman, who rode into battle and dismounted to fight on foot], one grenadier battalion, and one light infantry battalion. For £3,000,000, the Prince of Hesse-Cassel, who had 100 children to support, furnished fifteen regiments, each consisting of five companies, four grenadier battalions, two jaeger (riflemen) companies, and supporting artillery--in all, 12,500 men.

The Prince of Hesse-Hanau, who was supporting only 74 children, was to provide one regiment of 900 men. And from Waldeck came one 750-man regiment.
England agreed to pay 30 marks per man to their German sovereign for these final two contingents of what history refers to as the "Hessians." Equipment also was to be furnished by the German princes. Food and clothing and sea transportation from a German port were furnished by the British. For a death casualty, the German prince received another 30 marks. For each German who deserted the British service, there was to be no payment to his German prince.
The German princes required each soldier to swear allegiance to King George III, that is, to pledge a dual allegiance. The total contract cost for the "Hessians" was £4,700,000. The American Congress offered each German 50 acres of land and freedom if he deserted.

The Germans, or so-called "Hessians," represented about a third of the British forces fighting the Americans, and played an important part for the British side in the American Revolutionary War. When General George Washington recrossed the Delaware on Christmas night of 1776, he attacked a force at Trenton of 1,500 Hessians, killing or wounding 106, capturing 900, while losing only 4 Americans killed. According to Winston Churchill, the captured Hessians were paraded through the streets of Philadelphia, creating an effect "out of all proportion to its military importance."

Benjamin Franklin, in Paris, wrote a clever satire on the sale of the Hessians in the form of a letter from a fictitious German count to a fictitious German Baron Hohendorf, commanding Hessians troops in America, in which the count is vacationing in Italy and commends the baron for sending an "exact list" of the "1,605 men killed" at Trenton to the count's minister in London since the report sent to the English ministry reports only 1,455 dead, commenting on the financial difference this would make and expressing confidence that the baron would "take the necessary pains to prove that Lord North's list is false and yours correct." The letter further satirically urges the baron to let a wounded Hessian die rather than live. He pleads that the Hessian soldiers should seek glory and honor in the midst of dangers, comparing them with the defenders of Thermopylae, all of whom died.

It is true that their king, Leonidas, perished with them, but things have changed, and it is no longer the custom for princes of the empire to go and fight in America for a cause with which they have no concern. And besides, to whom should they pay the thirty guineas per man if I did not stay in Europe to receive them? Then, it is necessary also that I be ready to send recruits to replace the men you lose. . . . It is true, grown men are becoming scarce [in Hesse], but I will send you boys. Besides, the scarcer the commodity the higher the price. I am assured that the women and little girls have begun to till our lands, and they get on not badly. You did right in sending back to Europe that Dr. Crumerus who was so successful in curing dysentery. . . . Besides, you know that they pay me as killed for all who die from disease, and I don't get a farthing for runaways.

My trip to Italy, which has cost me enormously, makes it desirable that there should be a great mortality among them. . . . you will say to Major Major Maundoff that I am not at all content with his saving the 345 men who escaped the massacre at Trenton. . . . Finally, let it be your principal object to prolong the war and avoid a decisive engagement on either side, for I have made arrangements for a grand Italian opera, and I do not wish to be obliged to give it up. Meantime, . . .

In the summer of 1777, Brigadier General John Stark, a veteran of Bunker Hill, and the militia from around Bennington, Vermont, surrounded and destroyed a body of 500 Hessians who had been sent on a foraging mission by General (Gentleman Johnny) Burgoyne. This engagement led to the Battle of Saratoga, in which Burgoyne surrendered a British force of 5,000 to the Americans on 17 October 1777. The Battle of Saratoga was a turning point in the War, and in no small part precipitated the American alliance with France, signed by Benjamin Franklin on 6 February 1778.

On 7 April 1778, William Pitt, now the Earl of Chatham, corpse-like, swathed in flannel bandages, on crutches, made the last speech of his life to Parliament, loyal to George III, an attack "against the dismemberment of this ancient and most noble monarchy." He warned the nation of the dangers of 1Commager and Morris, The Spirit of Seventy-Six, pages 269-270.

French intervention and the use of German mercenaries, and scourged his countrymen for their inhumanity. "My lords, if I were an American as I am an Englishman, while a foreign troop were landed in my country I would never lay down my arms--never, never, never." He tried to continue to speak, but collapsed senseless in an apoplectic fit. He died on May 11th.

The "Hessians" participated also in the Battles of Long Island (27 August 1776), White Plains (28 October 1776), Fort Washington (16 November 1776), Brandywine (11 September 1777), Newport (August 1778), Charleston (12 May 1780), and Guilford Courthouse (15 March 1781). The surrender of Charleston to the British was a major disaster to the patriot cause.

In The Baroness and the General, Tharp describes the adventures of a German baroness, Frederika of Brunswick, wife of 39-year-old Baron Fredrich Adolph von Riedesel, general in charge of the troops rented to King George III by the Duke of Brunswick. Baroness von Riedesel followed her husband to America to be with him while he fought the American rebels, and took her three daughters (all less than five years of age), plus at least one servant. While in America a fourth daughter, named America, was born. The baroness was in America for six years, traveling from Quebec to Boston, New York, Virginia, and back to Canada. Von Riedesel's service against the Americans ended with his surrender and subsequent parole, under Burgoyne, at Saratoga. While the crossing of an ocean to be with a military husband combatant was quite unusual, it was not unusual within Europe at that time.

German participation during the American Revolution was bound to have a profound effect upon the future make-up of the population of the United States. German troops witnessed first-hand the opportunities in America for space and freedom, including freedom from the possibility of being conscripted by a prince and sent to fight and die for a foreign monarch in whose cause the conscriptee and his family did not believe! For example, my great-grandmother, Elizabeth Pfetzing, came to America from Sterkelhausen (about 22 miles southwest of Cassel), landing in Galveston in December 1845. Her husband-to-be and my great-grandfather, Johann Heinrich Christoph Schmidt, whom she would meet in Galveston, came from Oberg, Hanover, landing in Galveston in January 1846. Another boost for emigration from Hesse to the United States was the signing of a treaty on 2 May 1846 in Berlin by the U.S. minister in Berlin and a representative of the Grand Duchy of Hesse. The treaty abolished the tax on emigration between Hesse and the U.S.A. Johann Albert Ludwig and Margarethe (Rogge) Hegmann came to Galveston in 1849 from Hamm and had lived in Wiesbaden. A 1st Lieutenant von Hegeman is listed in Lieutenant Colonel von Linsing's battalion of Grenadiers in the Hessians of 1781 (Rosengarten), fighting in America for the British.

Two incidents demonstrated the undercurrent of opposition to the royal establishment of what is now Western Germany during the 30 years preceding the coming to Galveston of my Schmidt-Pfetzing and Hegmann-Rogge great-grandparents. An organization of students, the Burschenschaften, grew on at least twelve university campuses. This organization promoted such new ideas as government by legislative bodies rather than under hereditary monarchs. At the Wartburg Festival (near Eisenach) in 1817, which observed the 300th anniversary of Luther's nailing of the 95 theses on the church door at Wittenberg, 400 students gathered from 12 universities. In March 1819 a student, Karl Ludwig Sand, killed August von Kotzebue, a spy of Czarist Russia. Sand was executed at Mannheim. Also in 1819, Lohnung, an apothecary at Schwalbach, attempted to stab and shoot the President of the government of Nassau. Lohnung went to prison and committed suicide by eating broken glass.

German diplomats, led by Prince Klemens Furst von Metternich, were impressed by these two incidents. At a meeting in Carlsbad in 1819, German diplomats, influenced at least partly by Metternich, declared the dissolution of the Burschenschaften and Gymnastic Societies which had been established by Friedrich Ludwig Jahn. Inspectors for universities and censors of the press were appointed. The secret police was strengthened. The diplomats recognized the right of federal organizations to intervene in any state where a legislature dared to assert supremacy over the monarch. These yearnings for more democracy and less monarchy and the reactions of the establishment grew in all nations in Europe until 1848, at which time there were revolutions, all unsuccessful, in nearly every nation in Europe, including the un-unified states of Germany. It was no coincidence that 1848 was also the year of the publication of Karl Marx's Das Kapital.
The knowledge brought back from America by the German troops used in the American Revolution, of a land of no monarchs, of a free land with great opportunities, combined with this yearning and dissatisfaction, helped to encourage migration of Germans to the United States, before the revolutions of 1848 and after those revolutions failed.

Of course, some of the "Hessians" abandoned the British cause and remained in America. Of the 29,000 troops sent to America, only 17,000 returned. In Cowpens, Davis (see bibliography) reports that about 5,000 deserted the British and another 7,000 were killed. The Reeder side of our family may have come from the 5,000 (see below); however, Simon Reeder, my 4-great-grandfather, is traceable back to October 1767 at age 49 on the Enoree River in South Carolina, only 30 miles south of the site of the Battle of Cowpens, where, on 17 January 1781, Brigadier General Daniel Morgan, a veteran of the Battle of Saratoga, led the Americans as they defeated an attacking British force led by the redoubtable Lieutenant Colonel Banastre Tarleton. The British, with twice as many men, lost 100 killed and about 830 captured, compared to the Americans' loss of 12 killed and 60 wounded. Cowpens is just 28 miles south of King's Mountain, across the border in North Carolina, where on 7 October 1780 Colonel John Sevier and Colonel Isaac Shelby led local patriots in killing 157, wounding 163, and capturing 698 Tories, and killing their leader, British Major Patrick Ferguson, who had been sent by Lord Charles Cornwallis. King's Mountain was one of the most important battles fought in the South, cheering the spirits of the patriots and slowing the Cornwallis move into North Carolina, gaining time for the Americans. Whether German troops fought at King's Mountain and/or Cowpens has not been confirmed by this writer.

Geography

The German state of Hesse has had different boundaries at different times, but generally it has been located on both banks of the Rhine and Main rivers, north and south of Frankfurt. Its principal cities are Frankfurt, Wiesbaden, Cassel, Darmstadt, and Offenbach. It is 65% Lutheran, with universities at Frankfurt, Marburg, and Giessen. The rulers of Hesse-Cassel championed the Reformation and were allies of Sweden in the Thirty Years War, and invited the Huguenots to settle at Hanau. In 1807-1813 Hesse was included in Westphalia. It is now part of Hesse-Nassau. Hesse-Darmstadt, the southern part of the landgraviate of Hesse, often sided with Austria against Hesse-Cassel in intra-German struggles.

Comparative History

In order to provide some perspective with regard to other events occurring before and after the American Revolution, the following is offered: The plays attributed to William Shakespeare were written in the late 16th and early 17th centuries. Sir Isaac Newton had invented calculus at Trinity College, Cambridge, by 1671, and published his Mathematical Principles of Natural Philosophy in 1687. In 1765, James Watt invented a significant improvement on Newcomen's steam engine in Glasgow. Johann Sebastian Bach (1685-1750) was born in Eisenach, Thuringia, about 95 miles northeast of Frankfurt. Georg Frederic Handel (1685-1759), who was born in Halle, about 170 miles northeast of Frankfurt, performed as a musician at age 12 at the court of the King of Prussia. He performed his first opera later in Hamburg, and studied in Italy for three years beginning in 1707. Johann Wolfgang von Goethe (1749-1832) was born in Frankfurt and practiced law first in Frankfurt (1771-75) and then in Weimar (1775-85), which is 42 miles east of Eisenach. By 1790 Watt's steam engine was complete. In 1793 in the United States Eli Whitney applied for a patent on his cotton gin. Ludwig van Beethoven (1770-1827) was born in Bonn, Westphalia, about 100 miles west-northwest of Frankfurt.

Author's Possible Hessian Descent

John Henry Reeder, son of Jacob, grandson of Daniel, and presumably great-grandson of Simon Reeder, Sr., of South Carolina, is reported to have said that his grandfather, Daniel, was the youngest of sixteen children of his (un-named) great-grandfather, who had come from Germany. This report has been generally regarded as incorrect, but no mention has been made of the possibility that an early Reeder of South Carolina might have been a "Hessian" soldier who decided he liked the freedom of the people he had been sent to fight against! Simon Reeder, Sr., is reported to have taken out 250 acres of land in Berkeley District in 1767. The author of this paper is a descendant of David Reeder, second youngest of the 16 children of Simon Reeder, Sr., of South Carolina. Simon Reeder, Sr., would have been 62 years old at the Battle of Cowpens, so it is unlikely that he was a Hessian soldier and unlikely that the 1767 date was wrong.

My earliest knowledge of the Reeder family is of Simon Reeder in South Carolina in about 1767, in the part that became Laurens County. David Reeder, son of Simon, left South Carolina in 1825 immediately following the death of his wife, going to Lauderdale County, Alabama. Thomas A. Reeder, born in 1805, son of David, came to Alabama in 1825 with his father. Thomas Reeder became a lieutenant in the Arkansas militia, part of the U.S. forces fighting Mexico. The war ended in 1848 and in 1849 he received land in Arkansas as a bonus for being a war veteran. He moved his family to Arkansas in 1849 from a farm near Florence, Alabama. Samuel David Reeder, son of Thomas, was a Confederate soldier who was captured and paroled at Vicksburg. My grandpa, William Samuel Reeder, son of Samuel David, moved from Arkansas to Texas in 1905 following the death of my grandmother, Laura, at the time of the birth of her eleventh child. My father, Ernest Reeder, then age 15, came with him. He and my mother met, married, lived, and died in Fort Worth, Texas. Mother, Frieda (Schmidt) Reeder, was born on a farm near Birdville, which is now in the city limits of Fort Worth. Her parents were second generation German-Texans, having been born in Galveston. They probably left Galveston in 1892 to seek farmland—a respite from the city. Mother's grandparents had come from three parts of Germany to Galveston in 1846-1849. We do not know specifically why they came, but dissatisfaction in Germany at that time was demonstrated by an unsuccessful revolution in 1848. America offered freedom and new opportunities.

My earliest knowledge of my mother's family (Schmidt) is of a man named Schu(macher) Henchin, who died in Liebenscheid, Germany. While I possess no dates of his birth or death, his son, named Adamus Helvetius, born in Liebenscheid, died in 1568 in Eisenroth. Adamus Helvetius, my 10-great-grandfather, attended the Dillenburg Latin school in 1538-40 as Adamus Sutor Lebenscheitinus. He became a priest, studying in Marburg in 1540, later in Wittenburg. He was assistant schoolmaster in Dillenburg in 1551, probably chaplain in Beilstein in 1553, second preacher and schoolmaster in Haiger in 1555, and preacher in Eisenroth in 1561.

Tobias Helvetius, son of Adamus and my 9-great-grandfather, studied at the Dillenburger Latin school in Marburg ending in 1565. He was a deacon in Haungen from 1571 to 1576, preacher in Ulm in 1583, and later preacher in Bellersheim by Haungen in Upper Hesse. Tobias Helvetius' son, Johann Philipp Schweitzer, born in Ulm in 1595, matriculated in school as Johannes Philippus Helvetius Ulmensis. A priest like his father and grandfather, he became preacher in Werdorf in 1642-43, at Ulm in 1643-46, and at Kolschausen, court chaplain of Hohensolms. His wife, whose name is unknown, was said to be "a rich citizen of Werdorf who was involved in the witch hunts of 1643-45."

TALK OF MANY THINGS --- MAINLY NEWSPAPERS

"'The time has come,' the Walrus said,
'To talk of many things:
Of shoes--and ships--and sealing-wax--
Of cabbages--and kings--
And why the sea is boiling hot--
And whether pigs have wings.'

Since Lewis Carroll [Charles Lutwidge Dodgson] published Alice's Adventures in Wonderland in 1865, many things have changed. Sealing wax has all but disappeared, ships are being superseded by planes (once called airships), and kings are few and far between. Investigation of the mysteries of the sea goes on apace, and tabloid newspapers present stranger anomalies than winged pigs.

For centuries, newspapers have recorded the happenings of the community. Naturally, the element of permanence gives that medium a vast advantage over the speedier radio and television news media for those who wish to research the past. By means of microfilming, newspapers again surge ahead of televised news, for the latter is almost inaccessible to the average person who wants to research it later.

In our November 1988 and March 1989 issues we discussed the ongoing project of the cataloging and microfilming of newspapers being funded by the National endowment for the Humanities. Titles are entered into the on-line bibliographic database (Online Computerized Library Center) serving over 8,000 libraries.

The OCLC Newsletter dated March/April 1989 presents a progress report of this United States Newspaper Program, which reveals that the sum of $414,598 was awarded to Texas for planning and for the continuation of multi-stage projects. Now cataloging has been completed here -- 9,000 newspaper titles have been located and recorded. For information about microfilming plans, contact Allison Beck, Barker Texas History Center, University of Texas at Austin, Austin TX 78713.

Other states that have completed cataloging are: Hawaii, Indiana, Montana, Nevada, Utah, Virgin Islands, West Virginia and Wisconsin. Also: American Antiquarian Society (Worcester MA); Center for Research Libraries (Chicago); Kansas State Historical Society (Topeka); New York Historical Society (New York City); Rutgers University Library (New Brunswick NJ); State Historical Society of Wisconsin (Madison); and Western Reserve Historical Society (Cleveland OH).

Another item in the OCLC Newsletter announces the third edition of the USNP National Union List on microfiche. The package includes bibliographic information for over 100,000 papers published in USA, from Publick Occurrences (1690) to USA Today. There are two indexes and other finding aids in the package. In the Genealogy Collection in Texas State Library, an earlier edition of that godsend to researchers in book form is shelved behind the two staff desks. Both forms of this super catalog of newspapers may be found upstairs in Room 300.

Proceeding from the WHAT happened to WHERE it happened, the Genealogy Collection now has 421 Highway Department maps of Texas counties presented by Mrs. H.R. Gentry to AGS. They are in shallow boxes on the file cabinets in the alcove near the desk of Miss Carter, the Supervisor. Thanks are due her for procuring the map cases and to Mrs. Gentry for the gift.
GRAY GOLDEN GENEALOGICAL GIFTS ESTABLISHED

Every now and then a very special person comes along and makes a real difference in the lives of those she meets. In the Austin Genealogical Society, that person is Mrs. Gray Golden. She was instrumental in organizing the Genealogy Section of the Texas State Library and became its first supervisor. After her retirement from the Library, she taught the Lifetime Learning Institute's GENEALOGY classes. Mrs. Golden has helped countless individuals "learn the ropes" of genealogical research in these classes. Along with extensive research on her own ancestors, Mrs. Golden has performed genealogical research for others. This work has led her on trips throughout the United States and Europe.

Mrs. Golden is a charter member of the Austin Genealogical Society and now holds lifetime membership status with the Society. Her tireless work in AGS, and in other genealogical organizations, has made her a treasured person to all who strive to be better genealogists.

In forming the new Memorials Committee, the Board of Directors of AGS voted to name the committee the GRAY GOLDEN GENEALOGICAL GIFTS. This committee will work to encourage contributions to AGS to honor or to memorialize others. A special "Memorials" book has been purchased to make a permanent record of contributions. The committee will record the contributions and send the proper acknowledgements.

The form on the next page (or a copy of it) may be used by anyone to contribute to the GRAY GOLDEN GENEALOGICAL GIFTS. The money donated will be used to purchase books for the Texas State Library, Genealogy Section. All books donated will be given to this library section.

MAIDEN OR MARRIED LADY?

At the seminar recently presented by Austin Genealogical Society, Mr. William H. Schoeffler, the prestigious speaker, offered many helpful suggestions. One was related to the information to be found in wills which, he cautioned, may sometimes be misleading.

If the testator followed a German custom, he listed his daughters by their maiden name, which would lead to the conclusion that they were not married. Mr. Schoeffler advised researchers to examine every document in the probate package, for they might find among the settlement, accounting, or partition papers that a James Baker received a share "by right of his wife, Hulda Klein," thus revealing that Johan's daughter Hulda did marry!
PURPOSE: Austin Genealogical Society was organized in 1960 as a non-profit corporation chartered by the State of Texas. Its purposes are to collect and preserve genealogical and historical information about the people of Texas, particularly pertaining to the City of Austin and to Travis and surrounding counties; to instruct and assist members in genealogical research; and to publish public and private records of genealogical interest. Gifts and bequests to AGS are tax-deductible.

MEMBERSHIP is open to all upon payment of annual dues: $12 per individual, or family membership at $14 for two in same household, entitling them to one copy of each Quarterly and Newsletter, as well as two pages apiece (a total of four pages for $14 whether one or two persons submit listings) in the Ancestor Listing Issue (June).

DUES ARE PAYABLE on or before JANUARY FIRST for the ensuing year. If dues are not received by February First, the name must be dropped from mailing list. If membership is reinstated later and quarterlies & newsletters have to be mailed individually, postage must be charged. (Back quarterlies supplied IF available - very few extras are printed. Send payments to AGS Treasurer, Box 1507, Austin TX 78767-1507.

MISSING COPIES. If your Quarterly does not reach you by the 10th of April, July, October or December, notify the Society at Box 1507, Austin TX 78767-1507 (but Exchange Quarterly Chairmen should use TEXAS STATE LIBRARY address given on inside front cover). Members who fail to give AGS sufficient advance notice of address changes will be responsible for the postal fee for returned copies and for remailing the copy at individual rather than bulk mailing rates.

MEETINGS of the general membership begin at 7:30 p.m. on the fourth Tuesday of each month except August and December. HOWEVER, members are encouraged to come at 6:30 to socialize with each other. The Board of Directors meets at 6:30 in a separate room. MEETING PLACE: Room 12, First Baptist Church, 901 Trinity. Enter on the east side - Neches Street. Free parking in the lot south of the church, 9th & Trinity. VISITORS ARE WELCOME.

AGS QUARTERLY is issued about the middle of March, June, September and November. Contributions are welcome, subject to editing to conform to our style. Contributor is responsible for accuracy and any copyright infringement. Send directly to Editor.

BOOK REVIEW POLICY. Books cannot be reviewed in AGSQ on the basis of advertising alone. If a Review Copy is received by the Editor at 2202 W. 10, Austin TX 78703 by the First of February, May, August or October, it will be reviewed in the next Quarterly (provided it is on an appropriate subject). It will then be placed in the Genealogy Collection of Texas State Library, available to all patrons.

ANCESTOR LISTING PAGES must reach Editor at above address by the TENTH OF MAY. They must be BLACK and LEGIBLE, whether typed, hand-printed, computer printout, or in superior calligraphy. Months must be SPELLED or abbreviated, NOT figures. Preferred form for dates: day, month, year. Allow space for binding at inner margins of facing pages; i.e., your first page will be a left-hand page. Carefully check horizontal pages (reading in the 11-inch direction). Otherwise, the Editor has to position some upside down to prevent loss of data in the punching-stapling process. NO 8½x14 sheets!

You may submit Lineage or Family Group charts, Ahnentafel, narratives, cemetery inscriptions, Bible records, census data, queries, or a combination of forms, just so it is not under copyright. Be sure to proofread your material for accuracy and clarity so we won't be guilty of disseminating faulty data. Put name & address on each page in legible form (NOT blind embossed). Consult a recent issue of AGSQ for suggestions.

REMEMBER: $12 membership entitles you to two facing pages in Ancestor Issue; $14 membership (one person or two) gives you four facing pages.

DEADLINES for everything except book reviews: 10th of February, May, August and October. Material sent to AGS P.O. box may or may not reach Editor in time.
