News Articles

The latest in DNA progress

There are two new – potentially major – developments in DNA utilization.

The first is that companies (My Heritage, Living DNA, and ToTheLetterDNA) are now capable of taking DNA samples from licked envelopes and stamps, offering the possibility that DNA can be retrieved from letters left behind by family and friends.

The companies are drawing the line at testing for living people; presumably a test on documents sealed by living people means they haven't consented to having their DNA tested. But the ethics of testing the DNA of dead people is still ambiguous. Dead celebrities, particularly, have no privacy rights.

The testing costs between $400 and $600 because it has to be done by a technician instead of robotics.

Read The Atlantic story here:

https://www.theatlantic.com/science/archive/2019/03/dna-tests-for-envelopes-have-a-price/583636/?utm\_source=eb

The second is that forensic scientists have developed a way to tell identical twins apart through DNA mutations. Right now the testing is very limited and very expensive, a “try it one at a time” operation. About one percent of paternity cases and crimes involve identical twins, so police and the courts are very keen on making this possible broadly. The science is complex, costly and hasn't been broadly tested, nor has it been scientifically published. But it is moving forward.

We heard it first!

Dr. Steven Murdock who spoke at AGS last year about Texas' rapidly changing demographics just gave the same presentation to our representatives in the state legislature.

February's presenter, Justin Gordon, Chief of the Open Records Division, shared with us the Texas Public Information Act and how it can be used by the genealogist to obtain not readily accessible records from state and local governmental agencies. The day of that presentation, the Austin American Statesman had an editorial article about the Public Information Act and the need to close some loopholes in it.

We want to know what you think - survey open until March 15

It's been two years since we asked you what you think and want from AGS. It's that time again! A new survey has been sent to our members via email and also posted on facebook. Beverly Pritchett — our events chair — has designed the survey and is including questions on the events you want, as well as others that will enlighten the board on your desires . . . but that will only work if you respond!

If you want AGS leaders to know what you want, be sure to take a few minutes to check the boxes. We are accepting your feedback until March 15.

Thank you to those that have responded to date, there have been many good suggestions!

You know that just listing names, places and dates on ancestral charts is not the most exciting way to bring your ancestors to life. To do that you need to tell an an engaging story. Yes, you need to create a family history.

Our March speaker, Devon Lee, will discuss simple, practical ways to turn a collection of impersonal facts into a captivating story that you can share with your relatives and future generations. Your ancestors may be gone but they will not be forgotten. So it's time to get your priorities straight. It's time to stop researching and start writing your family history. Fear not, there is a recipe to guide you in writing that family history. And our speaker, Devon, will show you how.

March Conversation Starter: Who Is the Most Interesting Character in Your Family Story?

If you were to write your family history as a novel, who would you choose as its main character? Which of your ancestors intrigues you most?

What do you know about them? What about them remains a mystery?

This ancestor may have been upstanding, a war hero, a success. Or they may have been...well...complicated.

They may be a character you identify with, perhaps would love to emulate...or they may just be colorful.

Perhaps your ancestor accomplished something that brought your family to the next level, improving their lives for generations to come. Or maybe they took a catastrophic fall that darkened your family's destiny.

This ancestor's struggle, for better or worse, might embody a theme that recurs more than once in your family's story. Or something about them just strikes in you a personal chord.

Please join us at 6:30 pm on March 26th for a half-hour of snacks and socializing at Highland Park Baptist Church. Beginning at 7:00, speaker Devon Lee will guide us through "You Can Do It: A Recipe for Writing Your Family History."

See you there!

AGS / AGE Fourth Saturday Class

Taming the Digital Tiger

Presenter Dianne Holley

Saturday, March 23, 10:00 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.

Austin Groups for the Elderly, Austin Computer Lab, 3710 Cedar St., Austin, TX 78705

What you should know:

- basic computer skills that include: keyboard familiarity, mouse uses (both left and right-click buttons), and Windows 7 or newer navigation/software application interactions.

- general understanding of genealogy including understanding of terms such as “facts”, “sources”, and “media”.

In Taming the Digital Tiger – You will learn how:

- To capture a document and what to do with it once you’ve got it.
- To analyze a document and understand what it is and is not telling you.
- To create a filing system to manage all your documents
- To SAVE the document source information (there is an easy way!)

Genealogy research could be fun, except for those Documents! Find them... Copy or download them... And then what?

Whether you are a seasoned family history researcher or a first timer, you know, or soon will, that those precious documents you’ve found to tell your family’s stories will accumulate to the point of overwhelm! It is akin to holding a tiger by the tail (yes, pun intended 😊).

The AGS Fourth Saturday Class with Genealogist Dianne Holley will show you how to wrap your arms around that Tiger and learn to process, use, and manage those documents from download to disposition.

These two and ½ hours can change your genealogical life for the better.

AGS membership required. Class fee is $10.00. This is a computer lab. Seating capacity is 10.

Join us for our first event of 2019

Oakwood Cemetery Tour

“Texas Independence Tour”

April 6th, 9:45 a.m.

Rain date April 13th at 9:45

Oakwood Cemetery, 1601 Navasota St., Austin, TX 78702

The fight for Texas’ independence from Mexico may not be well known or understood by many of today’s Austin residents who have moved here from other states. For many native-born Texans whose family goes back generations, the stories of the people who fought for a new land and government free from Mexican rule is something they hold near and dear, for it was their ancestors who shed blood to help in that great cause.

On the "Texas Independence Walking Tours" at Historic Oakwood Cemetery you will hear about some of the heroes interred at Oakwood who participated in the Texas Revolution (October 1835 to April 1836). You will learn about eight "residents" of Oakwood Cemetery on what it was like to live and fight in Texas during the Revolution days.

Some of the highlights we will be celebrating are Oakwood residents who:

- Participated in the opening battle of the Texas Revolution at the Battle of Gonzales
- Was one of the leaders at the Siege of Bexar and negotiated General Cos' surrender
- Was a participant in the "Runaway Scape".
- Survived the Alamo
- Escaped from Goliad, avoiding the tragic Goliad Massacre
- Elected as one of 59 representatives to write and sign both the Texas Declaration of Independence and the Texas Constitution and risked being charged with treason
- Helped win the decisive Battle of San Jacinto
- Guarded Santa Anna after his capture

The tour will not only be educational, but will also be filled with fun and interesting facts!

Visitors need to wear closed-toed comfortable shoes because of the uneven ground.

Registration for the Oakwood Cemetery tour will be available on the AGS website March 22: http://www.austintxgensoc.org/event/oakwood-cemetery-tour/?instance\_id=619
