President's Message

When do we finish a genealogy?

I began considering this after bumping into a friend who glowingly announced that she had finished her genealogy. She certainly must have a very different conception of a genealogy than I have. Or, else she had a far different goal.

I believe that to complete my genealogy I must trace every line back to its beginning. Each generation back I pick up the colateral lines. Thus for each generation back I have doubled my number of lines. After some study I found that many genealogists estimate that there are twenty-five to thirty years to a generation - this varies greatly in some of my lines. Now to have something definite to work with I decided to use thirty years to a generation so as to arrive at some idea of the work I might get involved in.

By reviewing twenty of my American lines I found that each immigrant ancestor arrived here between 1611 and 1670. Just to get a round number I decided to use 1650 or about three hundred years in America. This figured ten generations which would give me five hundred twelve ancestors to trace to. That father, his wife, their daughter and her husband who as "ancient planters" arrived prior to 1616 figured thirteen and fourteen generations but another line is only nine generations. Thus I can never expect to complete that many. To make a long story short I decided to quit figuring and just keep working.

Happy hunting,

/s/ Annie T. Giles

A TEXAN by ADOPTION - and a VERY BUSY MAN

George W. Glasscock arrived at Zavala in the municipality of Jasper during September 1835. He fought at the Siege of Bexar in December 1835. For this service he received a "Donation" grant of 640 acres for "having entered Bexar December 5, 1835." He, also, received another or "Bounty" grant of 320 acres for "military service rendered Texas November 16, 1835 to January 3, 1836."

News from Bastrop and from the San Gabriels in 1838

The following letter was written at Bastrop, Texas June 30, 1838, by George Washington Glasscock to his brother Joseph Milligan Glasscock at Zavala, Jasper County Texas. This "Zavala" is not the "Zavalla" in Angelina County but was the original Zavala on the east side of the Angelina River. Address on the letter shows it was carried from Bastrop to Zavala by Mr. Baird.

By Mr. Baird

According to the above letter plans were for Joseph M. Glasscock to move to Bastrop and operate a tavern. Apparently Joseph never got to Bastrop as he died July 22, 1839 in Liberty County, now a part of Polk County. However, his brother George did move to Bastrop in 1840.

George moved to a tract of land 1 1/2 miles west of Webberville, Travis County, in 1844; he moved to Williamson County in 1848 where he donated 172 acres of land for the site of Georgetown; he moved to Austin in 1853 where he lived at 1400 West Avenue until his death Feb. 28, 1868. George died as a result of injuries received when he was thrown from his riding mule at his farm near Webberville. His wife Cynthia had died at Austin November 7, 1866.

George W. Glasscock was a very active man in the 32 years he lived in Texas. He was interested in many enterprises and owned much property. He located and surveyed a great deal of land. Travis County 1860 census shows Glasscock owning 5 slaves and $150,000 in real property.

Among many business activities Glasscock was president of Air-line Railroad Company. Travis County 1860 census shows George W. Glasscock as a contractor and as an operator of a flour mill, a grist mill and a saw mill, and as a farmer.

George W. Glasscock was a County Commissioner in Williamson County at one time. He represented Travis and Williamson Counties in the 10th and 11th State Legislatures. He was a Mason, being a member of Austin Lodge No. 12. The Lodge published a memorial at his death. He was a very early member of the First Baptist Church at Austin. In 1858 he bought a $500.00 bell for the church which is still in use. In 1887 Glasscock County was created and named in his honor.

She said that this Marine had been killed at Iwo Jima.
